

NOTE FROM THE EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

We are honoured to present the third issue of the Journal of Economics and Policy. The journal follows a continuous tradition from the first series that examines and discusses issues related to Economics, Business, Finance and Public Policy. The journal has incorporated six articles which analyses vital policies apart from the conventional articles that are showcased in the chapters.

The Editorial Committee has explored several manuscripts and conducted in-depth review to ensure the quality and success in the publication of this journal. Thus, the six articles that are featured in this journal have qualified the screening process and met the requirements set out by the Editorial Committee as well as recommended by assigned reviewers.

The articles published in this journal consists of various essential topics ranging from issues evolving with fresh graduates to the country's economic scenario. The articles also address the significance of the civil service in shaping the pathway for Malaysia being in the Middle Income Trap to attain a high income nation status and correlations of job performance with organizational ethical culture. In addition, the articles discuss on global trend subjects such as crowdfunding and innovation.

We thank contributors and hope that this journal will continue on its path towards becoming a publication on international repute. We really hope the articles contained in this issue provide significant knowledge and insights to address some of the phenomena that we are facing. We welcome readers to submit articles or studies for future issues.
